Introduction

In 1837 the first Census was taken in Western Australia. It is the only census for the Colony which includes individual names. The collectors travelled from place to place listing the people living in each area with information relating to whether over or under 12 years of age, married or single, occupation, place of residence at the time of the census and place of birth. Not all of this information has been recorded for every person. The number of people in a family has also often been noted giving age, whether over or under 12 years, male or female and how many children were born in the Colony. Information has been detailed for properties giving acreages for various types of land use and numbers of livestock.

In places the writing in the original is difficult to decipher and the spelling of names in the typed list is as we have interpreted it. The names have been re-arranged into an alphabetical listing. The original lists of the 1837 Census are filed in the Colonial Secretary's Office Records in the Battye Library (C.S.O. vol. 58). The papers have become frail through much use and they have been copied on to microfilm. The typed list which has been made from the original gives a page reference for each entry and may be checked on the microfilm if desired.
